RE : Trademark

To Whom It May Concern:

It has been brought to our attention that your company owns the domain www.liarpedia.org, which uses Wikipedia trademarks in association with your services.

The name "Wikipedia" (U.S. Registration Nos. 3040722, 3505429, and 3324924) and the Wikipedia globe logo (International Registration No. 0982619) are registered trademarks of the Wikimedia Foundation. Our federal registration of this trademark provides us with certain proprietary rights. This includes the right to restrict the use of the trademark, or a confusingly similar trademark, in association with confusingly similar products or services.

It is important that we exercise our right to protect our trademark. It serves as an important and distinctive representation of the origin of our services as well as the goodwill of our company.

The use of the Wikipedia trademarks (specifically the use of "Wikipedia" and the globe on your home page as well as the use of both trademarks on the top left hand corner of any searched page) on your website mirrors the use of the Wikipedia trademarks on the Wikimedia Foundation's website, www.wikipedia.org, which confuses and misdirects users and potential users of the Wikimedia Foundation's services. This confusion may cause substantial harm to the trademarks by facilitating the loss of their effectiveness in establishing a distinct association between the trademarks, our products & services, and our company's goodwill and reputation. Therefore, unauthorized use of the Wikipedia trademarks by your company constitutes federal and state causes of action for unfair
